FOREWORD

This list of farmers marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare independent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare independent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed," it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare independent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare independent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare indedendent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers' marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare independent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare indedendent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers' marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare independent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.

FOREWORD

This list of farmers' marketing and purchasing cooperatives includes independent local associations, federations of associations, large-scale centralized associations, sales agencies, independent service-rendering associations, subsidiaries whose businesses are distinct from those of the parent organizations, and those locals of federations which prepare independent reports.

As a rule the list does not include small informal enterprises without established places of business, small pooling associations which function only a few days each year, branch offices, local outlets of operating associations, nor associations for which essential information is not at hand.

The master file of farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing associations from which this directory is compiled is always in process of being revised. New associations are being formed almost daily. Discontinuances occur frequently. Occasionally, associations change their names or the location of their headquarters. Some associations find it advisable not to operate during poor-crop years, but again become active when there is need for their services.

If those receiving copies of this directory will bring to the attention of the Cooperative Research and Service Division the names and addresses of newly formed associations, associations not found in this list, and associations for which mail is returned as "unclaimed", it will help to keep current the records of the Division.
